Diasporic location functions in this book as a perennially negotiated borderland—a real and symbolic space that adjudicates between solidarity and critique. Radhakrishnan's engagement with theory is always motivated by a desire both to build bridges with other communities of color and to engage in meaningful and constructive dialogue. He is particularly concerned with coalition, with overcoming compartmentalization and drawing fragmented movements together into if not a common cause, at ...

Diasporic Mediations is Radhakrishnan's attempt to find a still (not static) moment in the worldly traffic of cultural displacement. Riding high on the juggernaut of 'theory', communicating through the post-al system, does not always drive the political point home. But where is 'home' in the multivalent locations of cultural diaspora? Who can speak for-or from-the doubling locations of 'here' and 'there'? These compelling questions are posed here with clarity and rare ...

I'm saying there are very distinct forms of narrativity, choices, judgments, which evaluate certain locations, which create a home around certain locations. My natal home is in Bombay. My home that came out of my work is in the United States. London used to be an in-between space of a certain home. But that changes. So I think there is a continual transvaluation, or a changing. That depends ...
